ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a solid shape describing apparatus provided with a function for defining both absolute coordinate system and floating coordinate system, a function for describing a relationship between the absolute coordinate system and the floating coordinate system, a function for defining a three-dimensional cell array, a function for describing the correspondence between the floating coordinate system and the three-dimensional cell array, and a function for converting the three-dimensional cell array to a solid model.